Individual Comfort!

Did you know that a couple which lives together for approximately 20 years has spent more than 50,000 hours of common sleep?

This number is too important to ignore. What happens when each person has different sleep needs and habits but also different sleep preferences? Do they need to buy two different mattresses with different softness levels or should one of the two compromise their preference and, ultimately, sacrifice their Sleep Quality?

Each person has different sleep needs and these are mainly defined by our body type but also by the sensation we would like our mattress to offer.

Regardless of each person's body type, preference, favorite sensation and sleep habits, the ideal mattress should also offer:

1. Elimination of all pressure points on the body, minimising turning around in bed
2. Freedom of movement on the mattress without obstacles and discomfort
3. Isolation of each movement on the mattress on the side of our partner
4. Better mattress adjustment to our body anatomy, achieving the maintenance of our spine in its natural position
5. Maximisation of our sleep surface

After numerous research and experiments, our team at Gevorest Cyprus managed to create mattresses with a different feel on each side, satisfying couples with different body types, different body mass as well as different preferences as regards the feel and softness level and without compromise in relation to the level of support and comfort.

Comfortable and enjoyable sleep is a life value for our Gevorest family. Our advice as Sleep Advisors to those who share their mattress...is to never spend another night of turbulent sleep.

At Gevorest, we base our entire production on the concept of one-side architecture- the architecture of Comfort and Support.

The mattresses we design achieve a harmonious co-existence of different materials, increasing the mattress's endurance and offering maximum comfort and the right support.
